A perfect epidemic of thieving and pilfering seems to be sweeping over the land, especially among the towns is the last heard from in that line, and the Banner says:

During the latter part of the past week some person or persons-it is believed—stole a fine Alderney heifer calf from the Rev. Mr. Motheral, of this place. As nothing can be heard of of it it is supposed that has been stole and eaten. One night last week the tannery of Mr. James Batt, who resides in the western portion of the town, was entered and three or four sides of harness leather taken. There is too much stealing going on about town, and we hope the depredators will be caught and punished.

Languor, Its Cause and Remedy.

The cause of languor, when it is not the immediate or indirect consequence of positive disease, is traceable to a debilitating temperature.
